Dear Students:

We have an exciting graduate student researcher opportunity working with a Robert Wood Johnson funded study. We are seeking students who have between 8 and 10 hours per week (no fee remission, salary between $17 and $20/hour) to assist Drs. Leslie Dubbin and Irene Yen.

This study will explore the experiences of residents living in public housing projects that are currently undergoing redevelopment and renovation on a large scale. Your role on the team will be to assist in conducting qualitative interviews, data management, and analysis. Students who are fluent in Cantonese and Spanish are encouraged to apply. The position is available in January and will be funded through the end of 2018. Please contact Leslie Dubbin for more information at leslie.dubbin@ucsf.edu and send CV/resume if interested.
